HUBBELL FORCES IN REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION WIN IN FIRST TEST TODAY

Motion to Recess Until Tomorrow,
Made by Spies, Amended by Controlling Powers to Block
Play for Time.

CATRON MAY THROW HIS WEIGHT TO RAYNOLDS

Senator Fall Keynotes, Attacking
President Wilson and Presidential Policy Along Lines of His Former Speeches.

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 23.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon the Republi- can state convention, having completed the appointment of committees in the regular way, took a recess until 8 o'clock tonight. The motion to recess brought the first trial of strength in the convention. Charles A. Spies, leader of the Catron-Hubbell forces moved to recess to 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. It was regarded as a play for time. Nestor Montoya of Hermelillo county moved to amend it to 8 o'clock tonight.

Spies demanded a roll call which resulted in a vote of 118 for the amendment to 91. Cefas McKinley, Moys, Wm. Miguel, Santa Fe and Valencia and one vote from Guadalupe were with Mr. Spies on his motion.

Committees are instructed to report at 8 o'clock promptly and nominations probably will be made tonight as per the Hubbard-Montoya schedule.

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 23.—The republican state convention to nominate a congressional and state ticket assembled in the Paris theatre here shortly after 2 o'clock this afternoon with an enrollment of 228 delegates, nearly all of whom were present in person, there being a few proxies. Indications were that the convention would be adjourned throughout to be succeeded in Frank A. Hartwell for the United States senate and to C. Hartman for governor, and that those who would be nominated for their respective positions on the first ballot when nominations are cast. That there would be a fight for control of the permanent organization of the convention seemed probable although on the surface the convention was about as unaffiliated. Charles A. Spies was the floor-leader of the supporters of Hubbard and Montoya and it was announced that they would run to the finish, particularly for the fight of Hubbard for the senate.

In the vote of Senator T. B. Catron as to whether to postpone the senatorial nomination, W. G. Sargent will be present to the convention for governor, it is stated. Hubbard leaders declare that if Sargent goes before the convention for governor, they will present his nomination for state auditor on the ground that a man cannot be a candidate for two positions at the same time. Hubbard and Hartman appear to have the votes to meet one any opposition and the principal disturbing factor is the uncertainty as to the strength of O. A. Laredo in his fight for the nomination for the office of the supreme court. Laredo will be offered the nomination for attorney general and those who seem most informed on the law believe he will accept that place, permitting his nomination as Justice C. J. Roll to succeed himself.

Attorney General Frank W. Clancy has been eliminated from the situation on the assumption that Hubbard would be nominated for the senate, the attorney general said this morning when asked by the reporters to comment on the situation, that a convention which would nominate a ticket headed by Hubbard would not nominate himself and that at this time he had no further comment to make.

Up to this time neither side has a candidate for lieutenant governor nor a candidate for secretary of state. Antonio Arriaga of Las Cruces, who has been running vigorously for secretary of state for the past three months, has been dropped, unceremoniously so far as is known there is not a Republican in the state who cares to be a candidate for lieutenant governor.

In the event a fight is made on W. G. Sargent, a州的代表, may very well be nominated for state auditor. W. D. Murray of Silver City will be nominated for treasurer. H. P. Eason for land commissioner and J. H. Wagner for superintendent of schools.

It seems probable that nomination will be reached tonight, although this is determined by the strength displayed by the opposition to Hubbard and Montoya should they make a fight. It has been more than usually bitter that the opposition had considered a complete draw-out.

The theatre, hotel and gallery, or other meeting seating capacity was filled to overflowing when State Chairman C. E. Ely called the convention to order. Mr. Ely's part in the convention was merely formal. The roll was read, the temporary roll adopted. Senator Fall was elected temporary chairman and Mr. Ely, whose fight against the controlling forces of the convention has been bitter, relinquished his gavel and no status as a party official without comment of any kind.

Senator Fall, accompanied to the platform by a committee of five, received an enthusiastic ovation. When quiet was restored the senator launched at once into a discussion of national issues. He spoke, as is his custom, without notes or previous preparation, confining his address largely to a discussion of the issue of "Americanism" and the question of national revenues. He repeated his oft-repeated attack on President Wilson and his policy dealing with Spain and the German problem, asserted the importance of securing the national treasury for a protective tariff instead of what he termed the Democratic policy of raising national revenue wholly in taxation. This address was brilliant and eloquent, the speaker was in good form and voice, and was frequently and warmly applauded.

The meeting of the state committee this morning was wholly devoid even of the semblance of the anticipated fight. The Hubbard-Montoya forces were in control of the committee and it was evident that the opposition did not care to risk a trial of strength there and were holding back their efforts for the real earnestness of the convention. Even the announced intention to do so by Ralph C. Ely, as state chairman, the privilege of calling the convention to order was abandoned. Mr. Ely presided at the brief committee session, which was assembled in the supreme courtroom at 10:30 completed its work in 20 minutes and adjourned without a ripple to disturb the surface. The roll of delegates was read by Secretary Jose D. Sena and adopted with out contest of any kind.

H. B. Burns moved the selection of Senator A. B. Fall as temporary chairman and the senator's election was unanimous. Although Mr. Ely sat in the chair, Mr. Burns conducted the committee meeting. National Committee Charles A. Spies and others concerned sat quietly and watched him do it. Mr. Burns, Mr. Spies and former Governor Clegg were appointed a committee to note Senator Fall. Mr. Sena was elected temporary secretary of the convention along with interpreters including Domingo Arriaga, Antonio Lujan, Bernalillo Baca, Luis Amaya and Blas Sanchez. The committee adjourned after George L. Bradford had offered a motion that the officers of the committee supply a statement of the party's finance and a statement of its indebtedness prior to final vote from past concessions. Mr. Ely said he was prepared to furnish a statement for 1913 and as to 1912, indicating that the party still owed nothing but all these amounts.

An employee meeting this morning was thrown into a spirit of suspense of a minority which demanded immediate action unless the roads will not the president's plan, but the leaders insisted on suspending it before any vote could be taken on any of the various proposals.

They said afterward while the pressure for immediate action came from a minority, it was strong, but they believed the railroad presidents were considering the eight-hour day on condition that some definite arbitration be given them that little dispute be arbitrated.

Elisha Lee, chairman of the managers' committee, made this statement:

"There seems to be some question of the accuracy of the estimates made by the railroads of what it would cost to grant the demands of the trainmen, and I make this statement to clarify the public mind on this phase of the matter."

Some of the men urged that most of them as home leaders for railroad heads with authority to call a strike if the railroads do not accept the president's plan.

The meeting adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, apparently aware and apprised of what was about to happen.

It was our belief," one of the more moderate said, "that the railroads are playing for time with the government just as they have done with the unions many months. They are trying to hold off all night and the men are getting exhausted."

White the railroad executives continued deliberations on what term of contract proposal they shall make to President Wilson's plan, the other contingent with Newland and Representative Adamson, chairman of the interstate commerce committee in congress, put the bill to increase the number of the interstate committee of the railroads to 12, to award contracts of the railroads of the west among the railroads of the west.

Possibility of passing an eight-hour day for railroad workers discussed among several congressional leaders but no definite program was evolved and it was understood no action would be taken unless the president's efforts.

Three railroad presidents today reported to the committee which is trying to formulate a plan in behalf of the roads. President Wilson's suggested plan for meeting demands of the interstate commissioners' committee of the railroads, the conference of the railroads, and the conference of the railroads with the president at the White House last night. It is understood the purpose of this was to get the railroads to accept the president's specific ideas, but the railroads refused to do so in the present negotiations and the president's demands were rejected.

There was no change in our original estimate that to grant the demands would add a hundred million dollars a year to operating expenses on the contrary subsequent investigations have confirmed the substantial accuracy of that estimate.

"Confusions may have arisen from the fact that we have estimated that it would cost more than 300 million dollars a year to make the concession which President Wilson has proposed that the estimate is due to the fact that the president has promised that the majority would be willing to give the railroad a little more time.
